Latter Alleges "Vaudeville Trust" Has Conspired to Ruin Them Financially
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Allegation that a monopoly in vaudeville had been created by the Shubert brothers, who own the largest vaudeville circuit in the United States, was today made the basis of a suit filed in Federal Court today by Shubert's Advanced Vaudeville, Inc.
It was alleged by the Shuberts that the defendants had "conspired to ruin them financially" by creating a monopoly in vaudeville. The suit was filed by Shubert's Advanced Vaudeville, Inc., a corporation organized in New York, which is owned by the Shubert brothers.

GRILL DIPLOMAT IN STOKES TRIAL
Counsel for Both Sides Reprimanded by Court
Dr. Benson of Los Angeles Refutes Testimony
Legation Secret Bared in Attack on Witness
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Theft of a secret United States diplomatic code in Bucharest, fifteen years ago, was recalled in the Stokes divorce trial today during an attack on the testimony of Horace G. Knowles, former American Minister to Balkan and Latin-American nations.
Mr. Knowles said the code was offered to the Japanese government for $40,000, but asserted he had never heard it was bought later for $25,000 by the attorney for the defendant, Dr. Benson. He denied he had been dismissed after the incident.
The former diplomat, regarded by attorneys on both sides as the strongest witness among those who testified for W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel owner, swore earlier in the trial that he had seen Mrs. Helen Edwidge Stokes in the apartment of Edgar T. Wallace, principal co-respondent, while he was waiting for a friend, Dr. L. M. Benson, Dr. Benson denied in a deposition from Los Angeles that he had ever seen Mr. Knowles in the apartment.
TELLS OF THEFT
Mr. Knowles, subpoenaed for re-examination by Samuel Untermyer, chief counsel for Mrs. Stokes, admitted the code had disappeared while it was entrusted to his care. He said the thief was a messenger in the legation whose name he could not remember. Denying he had ever heard of Secretary Root's stating that he was not a fit person to represent the United States anywhere, Mr. Knowles asked to be permitted to give his version of the incident.
The code, he said, was in an unlocked drawer when he arrived at Bucharest, as there was no safe in the legation. He said he slept with it under his mattress for two weeks and then it disappeared shortly before the messenger left the place. He said it was not recovered at the United States embassy in St. Petersburg, where officials refused to buy it, after which it was offered to members of the Russian capital. The Japanese, he asserted, had it turned over to the United States without reading it.
How much was paid to get it back? asked Mr. Untermyer. "I didn't know of anything being paid for it," answered Mr. Knowles.
"That is not my information," asserted Mrs. Stokes's attorney, Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mr. Knowles.
"This blackguard here," interrupted Mr. Untermyer.
COUNSEL ON STAND
The court was in an uproar. Supreme Court Justice Mahoney, vainly rapping for order, finally forced the two lawyers to take their seats, although he gave no hint of the reprimand to be administered after the jury had withdrawn for the day and Latin-American nations.
Mr. Steuer demanded that Mr. Untermyer take the stand and testify to the source of his information. Mr. Untermyer at first demurred angrily, but finally was forced to take the stand by a letter from a member of his associated law firm in Washington.
Under examination by Mr. Steuer, Mr. Knowles denied he had been dismissed after the incident. He said he was waiting for a friend, Dr. L. M. Benson, Dr. Benson denied in a deposition from Los Angeles that he had ever seen Mr. Knowles in the apartment.

Many are wearing glasses that never did them harm, and remember having them to their regret. William J. Schoenfeld, a Brooklyn optician, after looking at the stand to testify Mr. Stokes had given him the album to make duplicates of the pictures of Wallace were not in the album when he saw it.
CODE WAS OBSOLETE
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The American diplomatic code disappeared in 1908, and its loss was a matter of public knowledge at the time, State Department officials recalled today, when information of its disappearance was given by Horace G. Knowles, as a witness at the Stokes divorce trial in New York, that the code was stolen from the American legation at Bucharest while he was minister to Bulgaria.
The code, he said, was in an unlocked drawer when he arrived at Bucharest, as there was no safe in the legation. He said he slept with it under his mattress for two weeks and then it disappeared shortly before the messenger left the place. He said it was not recovered at the United States embassy in St. Petersburg, where officials refused to buy it, after which it was offered to members of the Russian capital. The Japanese, he asserted, had it turned over to the United States without reading it.
How much was paid to get it back? asked Mr. Untermyer. "I didn't know of anything being paid for it," answered Mr. Knowles.
"That is not my information," asserted Mrs. Stokes's attorney, Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mr. Knowles.

CHARGES HENEY ROBBED WIDOW
Attorney is Excoriated for Attempted Ouster
Bought Sister-in-Law's Home for Fraction of Value
Still Holds Woman's Paper Acknowledging Debt
SAN JOSE, Oct. 29.—Francis J. Henevy, Los Angeles attorney, "robbed his brother's widow for what was a mere pittance of the value of her home," M. E. Harrison, San Francisco attorney, declared today in opening the argument of counsel at the trial involving the title to the famous Chateau Hiccup, near here, before Superior Judge F. B. Brown. Pointing out that his client, Mary A. Henevy, had not, Edwin, would lose everything if a decision is rendered against her in favor of Francis J. Henevy, who seeks to eject them from the property, Harrison dwelt at length on the inequity of the plaintiff in foreclosing sale under the first trust deed.
Harrison declared that Francis J. Henevy, in answering the charges of fraud, that he violated a confidential relationship, secured title to the vineyard in his own name and now claims it against his sister-in-law. The plaintiff admitted in his pleading that the fair market value of the property with the crop was about $45,000, which he bought at the sale for less than $10,000.
The complaint in the suit, Harrison said, also alleges that the defendants have committed a "gross fraud" if they are ejected, waste of the property amounting to $14,000.
The plaintiff still holds an acknowledgment of indebtedness against the defendant, Mary A. Henevy, Harrison argued, "and the sale he never applied one cent of it on the purchase price, but he took the amount of the first mortgage indebtedness. We have no assurance we will not now be subject to his vindictiveness and malignity."
GOT IT CHEAP
While the plaintiff paid about $30,000 for the property, Harrison said that within sixty days after the sale he sold the grape crop, which had been cultivated by the defendants for $25,000 net and actually paid but $14,000 for the vineyard now valued at more than $45,000.
"On the question of the relationship of the parties the testimony shows," Harrison said, "that Francis J. Henevy had a deep affection for his brother, Richard Henevy, and his wife, Mary Henevy, the latter's widow, Mary Henevy, is admitted. The relationship was not limited to the family, but extended to every member of his brother's family. He represented his brother in every litigation case or advised him frequently to hire. The plaintiff frequently gave him advice, and he was a partner in the business of the vineyard. Although he claims to have had a break with his brother in 1914 he never made a demand for the principal or interest of the money then owing to him. Under the relationship it was the duty of the plaintiff to disclose everything to the defendant, Mary Henevy, and give her every opportunity to obtain independent advice. His conduct was well calculated to build her into a sense of security and it was not until five days before the sale that he made any clear statement of his desire to eject her."
Harrison also argued that at the time of the sale the plaintiff was an agent of his sister-in-law, having requested and received from her a power of attorney to sell all of the vine, about 40,000 gallons, then on the vineyard, which he did not recede until after he had bought the property.
"MILD SCOLDING"
Frank Benson, one of the plaintiff's attorneys, commenced the reply argument late in the afternoon. He termed Harrison's remarks against the plaintiff as a "mild scolding." Benson dwelt on the claim of his client that the plaintiff "broke her heart" in 1914 and that no confidential relationship had existed between the parties since then. There was much speculation about the courtroom today whether the plaintiff would make an argument of his own. Although he stated that he would not, one of his attorneys stated that he would probably do so. In any event it is expected that arguments will be concluded tomorrow, that Judge Brown will take his decision under advisement.
CANADA FORCED TO SLAUGHTER BUFFALO
CHICAGO PACKERS MAY SELL BISON STEAKS FOR THANKSGIVING
CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Buffalo and such as Bill Cody and others helped to drive from the American plains, have become so numerous in the Dominion of Canada that they are on at Wainwright, Alta., that some 3000 of the animals, that follow Buffalo Bites victims to their happy hunting grounds next Thursday.
As a result, Buffalo steaks may be on the market by Thanksgiving.
John C. Campbell, an official of the National Parks Department of the Dominion, reported for Ottawa today after making arrangements with Canadian packers and pemican manufacturers to handle some of the executed bison.
Mr. Campbell explained the Buffalo are increasing about 2000 a year, and with 4000 in the Wainwright Reservation the herds have become too unwieldy.

INCOME REPORT ILLUMINATING
Revenue Bureau Figures Where Deflation Hit
Net Profits of Corporations Shrink Nearly Half
Cry of Plot to Rob Farmer and Labor False One
CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—More light is shed on the question of "who got deflated" by the Washington dispatches today giving the high lights of the detailed report on the 1921 income tax returns by the Internal Revenue Bureau.
More light is needed. Several million farmers have been led to believe that the last downward swoop of the industrial cycle was the result of a plot to rob the farmer. The same duck politicians and publicists, who circulated the story that was primarily responsible for the state of mind that led to the railroad strike last year, spread the story of the plot to rob the workingmen.
After every industrial depression in the history of the United States, the conspiracy reappears. Months or years later, when the facts and figures are available, it always becomes plain that if the "Wall Street crowd," or their ogre-like predecessors, who trace back popularity in the bushes for baby meek, did really plot the collapse, they were prior dubs bent on robbing themselves.
REGRETTABLE, BUT TRUE
It is regrettable, but true, that we humans have Nick Carter minds. If we were really the victims of all the conspiracies we conjure up, there is no hope for us; because if we are that easy, we are condemned forever to be victims.
The popularity of the politician, who is always telling folks how they are robbed, seems rather strange, when one stops to think that such stuff is really insulting to the popular intelligence.
Why people like to be told they are easy marks is hard to see, but they do like it. Look at all the Senators it has made. The following figures would seem to indicate that the "deflation plot" of 1920 is a worthy of a place in the "Hall of Hoaxes" alongside the "plot of 1817" and the "cross of gold."
NET INCOMES SHRINK
Corporation net income reported for 1921 aggregates $4,318,947,818. Their profits were cut half in two by the deflation, $2,159,454,513. Their profits were cut half in two by the deflation, $2,159,454,513. Their profits were cut half in two by the deflation, $2,159,454,513.
Of course, corporations are no longer owned by the rich. Henevy and his wife, Mary Henevy, the latter's widow, Mary Henevy, is admitted. The relationship was not limited to the family, but extended to every member of his brother's family. He represented his brother in every litigation case or advised him frequently to hire. The plaintiff frequently gave him advice, and he was a partner in the business of the vineyard. BANDITS IN CHINA FREE TWO WOMEN
Message Tells of Release of British Missionaries Held for Ransom
SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—Miss Mary Darroch and Miss Mary R. Sharp, British missionaries captured by bandits last month, have been released, according to a message received here today by the China Inland Mission from the mission's superintendent of Honan province. The message gave no details, merely saying: "Ladies released."
The first report of the capture of the missionaries reached Shanghai on September 26, last. They were captured when bandits raided the town of Sinwahien, Honan province. In addition to considerable loot, the brigands carried off the two missionaries and several mission school girls. The captives were taken to the mountains where they were held for $10,000 ransom.
Later reports said the women were undergoing hardships, being scantily clad and having little food.
Greek Revolt Considered at End Officially
ATHENS, Oct. 29.—The royalist insurrection led by Gen. Metaxas may be considered at an end. His troops have surrendered and the officers have either fled or become prisoners.
The insurrection was carefully planned by the old soldier, Gen. Metaxas. The uprising began simultaneously in all parts of Greece except in Athens, where quiet prevailed throughout a trying week. In Macedonia the government troops quickly dispersed the rebels, forcing them to flee into Albania.

The Lion's Share of the Profits!

The ablest economists in the United States observe that South America is on the eve of an era of tremendous development. For example, writing for the Los Angeles Examiner recently, George Wheeler Hinman states:

"Colombia is an object lesson in South American opportunity. It hasn't a square mile of land that will not produce something of value; has mineral riches as great as Mexico's and twice as great as Western Europe's; is inhabited by a very intelligent people and is anxious to develop resources, expand business, build up the nation's wealth."

Competent observers besides Hinman are asking the question: Should European investors get the lion's share of the profits that will result from the development of Colombia's resources, or are the people of the United States waking up to their opportunity?

Platinum

Consider the Choco District of Colombia. Here is the only spot in the world where platinum is produced in any volume. Five great steel dredges are now operating in this fabulously rich region—financed from London and New York. The district is practically controlled throughout its length and breadth by three groups: The South American Gold & Platinum Company; the British Platinum & Gold Corporation, and the Colombia Platinum & Gold Dredging Company.

The last named is a California Company and its headquarters are maintained here in Los Angeles—the nearest city of metropolitan importance to the District. This Company controls more than 155,000 acres of alluvial deposits in the very heart of production. Portions of its holdings have been systematically explored and tested at a cost of nearly $200,000. These engineering tests are of a precise nature and plainly reveal the presence of more than $40,000,000 in platinum and gold. And, mind you, the area tested constitutes only a tiny fraction of the Company's entire holdings!

Understand, the preliminary work is over. The gambling element has been wiped out. And the Company is now financing the last link with profit-making production.

Assuredly it will pay you to study this project. Shrewd investors will seize the opportunity to participate. And they will not have to wait long for rich rewards—steady income.

Fill in, tear off, and mail the coupon now—while the thought is before you. It brings THE ROMANCE OF PLATINUM, a profusely illustrated book which presents the facts without exaggeration, equivocation or double shuffling of any sort whatever.

WOMAN SEEKS LOST KINFOLK

Mistake of Foundling Home Makes Search Difficult

Girl's Memories Only Clew Held for Forty Years

Records of Adoption Offer Little Assistance

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Forty years ago the New York Foundling Hospital at Sixty-eighth street and Lexington avenue made a mistake. It sent West for adoption, with 199 others, a baby girl who had been left there only temporarily under special arrangements.

Today, without a tangible clue, with only a 3-year-old's memory flashes of incidents of early home life, ignorant even of her real name, the woman who was that baby and is now Mrs. W. H. Kramer, formerly of Bitter Root Valley, Mont., and now of 68 West Ninety-seventh street, is in this city trying to find her family.

Records were lost in the intervening years, as Mrs. Kramer found when she wrote to the home, several years ago. The girl was adopted in Minneapolis by a lumberman and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dents. She helped care for their children, grew up, married and went to Montana to live on her husband's ranch, had children of her own and saw her four babies grow. Then she settled her affairs and came here to start her search. That was two years ago.

It has not yet been successful. She remembers a large private house on a corner. There was a tiny yard and an iron fence on which she used to hang. It might have been Madison avenue, she thinks, because one block away she remembers a "back" man down the middle of the street.

Her father was a tall, light-haired man who wore a Prince Albert coat and carried a cane. She remembers her mother perfectly and says she looks just like her. Then her mother was ill. The illness had something to do with the white bundle that was her baby brother. She never saw her mother again out of bed. The next she remembers is being at the home of an aunt, who didn't like children. She has a mental picture of her uncle, a little slick-haired man, pounding on the table and telling his big fair-haired wife, "You've got nothing to do. You must take care of the child."

AUNT DIDN'T RETURN
But the aunt didn't mind him, evidently, for one day Mrs. Kramer, remembers her aunt walked with her to the Foundling Hospital and arranged to return for her.

Her aunt didn't return. The next spring, in 1884, the hospital sent 200 children West to be adopted. She went by mistake. Their records were sewn up in their little skirts. But the children salvaged the long trip by tearing out the papers and gravely exchanging them. Mrs. Kramer's record was lost.

She has vague recollection of the name Anna May. The Sisters, she thinks, called her Mary.

MRS. HOYT GOES WITH BOHEMIANS

New York Society Woman Leases Renovated Stable on Washington Avenue

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—At last Mrs. Lydie Hoyt, society woman and actress, has definitely identified herself with New York's Bohemian set.

For two or three years the beautiful Mrs. Hoyt has been accused by her social register friends of veering to the artistic and neglecting the Park-avenue side of life and has been praised by her stage and Latin quarter friends for that tendency.

Mrs. Hoyt's lease of a stable in the heart of the Bohemian section—MacDougal Alley—establishes her as a real inhabitant of the village.

It is a section that the really poor villager, who enjoys bait and atmosphere in lieu of food, cannot essay. But it is the village as every villager would like to live in.

People who are in art for art's sake only cannot afford to hand over $4000 every twelve months—which is the price Mrs. Hoyt pays for her stable. Of course it is a renovated stable—but even at that the average up-towner would think $4000 a high price. The building is in the rear of 23 Washington Square North.

UTAH MINERS MEET AGAIN IN MINNEAPOLIS AFTER SEPARATION

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—Old Dame Fortune played a queer game here when she dealt two aces, but spades—into the same hand. Spades—well, more or less. They were two Utah miners who had been separated thirty-three years, only to meet in a casual conversation in the St. Paul Hotel as strangers.

Sherman Kramer, one of the former "pards," is a salesman traveling out of New York. The other, H. M. Ryan, hails from Mesico, where he is engaged in mining.

Ryan strolled leisurely through the hotel corridors until he suddenly was attracted by some brightly-colored dress goods. He stopped to examine the fabric. "Mighty fine dress goods you have there," he said. Those colors would do big with the wealthy Californians down in my country. I'm from Mexico."

Mr. Ryan introduced himself, saying he was a miner in the town of Sinilas, State of Sinaloa. Mr. Kramer stated he once had

The Lion's Share of the Profits!

The ablest economists in the United States observe that South America is on the eve of an era of tremendous development. For example, writing for the Los Angeles Examiner recently, George Wheeler Hinman states:

"Colombia is an object lesson in South American opportunity. It hasn't a square mile of land that will not produce something of value; has mineral riches as great as Mexico's and twice as great as Western Europe's; is inhabited by a very intelligent people and is anxious to develop resources, expand business, build up the nation's wealth."

Competent observers besides Hinman are asking the question: Should European investors get the lion's share of the profits that will result from the development of Colombia's resources, or are the people of the United States waking up to their opportunity?

Platinum

Consider the Choco District of Colombia. Here is the only spot in the world where platinum is produced in any volume. Five great steel dredges are now operating in this fabulously rich region—financed from London and New York. The district is practically controlled throughout its length and breadth by three groups: The South American Gold & Platinum Company; the British Platinum & Gold Corporation, and the Colombia Platinum & Gold Dredging Company.

The last named is a California Company and its headquarters are maintained here in Los Angeles—the nearest city of metropolitan importance to the District. This Company controls more than 155,000 acres of alluvial deposits in the very heart of production. Portions of its holdings have been systematically explored and tested at a cost of nearly $200,000. These engineering tests are of a precise nature and plainly reveal the presence of more than $40,000,000 in platinum and gold. And, mind you, the area tested constitutes only a tiny fraction of the Company's entire holdings!

Understand, the preliminary work is over. The gambling element has been wiped out. And the Company is now financing the last link with profit-making production.

Assuredly it will pay you to study this project. Shrewd investors will seize the opportunity to participate. And they will not have to wait long for rich rewards—steady income.

Fill in, tear off, and mail the coupon now—while the thought is before you. It brings THE ROMANCE OF PLATINUM, a profusely illustrated book which presents the facts without exaggeration, equivocation or double shuffling of any sort whatever.

WOMAN SEEKS LOST KINFOLK

Mistake of Foundling Home
Makes Search Difficult

Girl's Memories Only Clue
Held for Forty Years

Records of Adoption Offer
Little Assistance

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Forty years ago the New York Foundling Hospital at Sixty-eighth street and Lexington avenue made a mistake. It sent West for adoption, with 119 others, a baby girl who had been left there only temporarily under special arrangements.

Today, without a tangible clue, with only a 3-year-old's memory flashes of incidents of early home life, ignorant even of her real name, the woman who was that baby and is now Mrs. W. H. Kramer, formerly of Bitter Root Valley, Mont., and now living at Ninety-seventh street, is in this city trying to find her family.

RECORDS ARE LOST
Records were lost in the intervening years, as Mrs. Kramer found when she wrote to the home several years ago. The girl was adopted in Minneapolis by a lumberman and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deert. She helped care for their children, grew up, married, and went to Montana to live on her husband's ranch, had children of her own and saw her four babies grow. Then she settled her affairs and came here to start her search. That was two years ago.

It has not yet been successful. She remembers a large private house on a corner. There was a tiny yard and an iron fence on which she used to hang. It might have been Madison avenue, she thinks, because one block away she remembers a "park" ran down the middle of the street.

Her father was a tall, light-haired man who wore a Prince Albert coat and carried a cane. She remembers her mother perfectly and says she looks just like her.

Then her mother was ill. The illness had something to do with the white bundle that was her baby brother. She never saw her mother again out of bed. The next she remembers is being at the home of an aunt, who didn't like children. She has a mental picture of her uncle, a little slick-haired man bounding on the table and telling his big fair-haired wife, "You've got nothing to do. You must take care of the child."

AUNT DIDN'T RETURN
But the aunt didn't mind him, evidently, for one day Mrs. Kramer, remembers her aunt walked with her to the Foundling Hospital and arranged to return for her.

Her aunt didn't return. The next spring, in 1884, the hospital sent 500 children West to be adopted. She went by mistake. Their records were sewn up in their little skirts. But the children survived the long trip by tearing out the papers and gravely exchanging them. Mrs. Kramer's record was lost.

She has vague recollection of the name Anna May. The sisters, she thinks, called her Mary.

New York Society Woman
Leaves Renovated Stable
on Washington Avenue

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—At last Mrs. Lydia Hoyt, society woman and actress, has definitely identified herself with New York's Bohemian set.

For two or three years the beautiful Mrs. Hoyt has been accused by her social register friends of veering to the artistic and neglecting the Park-avenue side of life and has been praised by her stage and Latin quarter friends for that tendency.

Mrs. Hoyt's lease of a stable in the heart of the Bohemian section—MacDougal Alley—establishes her as a real inhabitant of the village.

It is a section that the really poor villager, who enjoys bath and atmosphere in lieu of food, cannot essay. But it is the village as every villager would like to live in.

People who are in art for art's sake only cannot afford to hand over $400 every twelve months—which is the price Mrs. Hoyt pays for her stable. Of course it is a renovated stable—but even at that the average up-towner would think $400 a high price. The building is in the rear of 25 Washington Square North.

UTAH MINERS MEET AGAIN IN MINNEAPOLIS AFTER SEPARATION

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—Old Dame Fortune played a queer game here when she dealt two aces, but spades—into the same hand. Spades—well, more or less. They were two Utah miners who had been separated thirty-three years, only to meet in a casual conversation in the St. Paul Hotel as strangers.

Sherman Kramer, one of the former "pards," is a salesman traveling out of New York. The other, H. M. Ryan, hails from Mexico, where he is engaged in mining.

Ryan strolled leisurely through the hotel corridors until he suddenly was attracted by some brightly-colored dress goods. He stopped to examine the fabric, "Mighty fine dress goods you have there," he said. "Those colors would go big with the wealthy class down in my country. I'm from Mexico."

Mr. Ryan introduced himself, saying he was a miner in the town of Sinla, State of Sinaloa.

Mr. Kramer stated he once had running a store thirty-three years ago in Eureka, Utah.

"Ever hear of it?" Mr. Kramer asked.
"Hear of it?" Mr. Ryan fairly shouted. "Say—you aren't the man that used to credit me with beans and bacon—"

A hasty series of questions and answers verified for Ryan and Kramer that they were buddies in the town of Eureka thirty-three years before.

They spent the evening picking up the old, almost forgotten threads of the former comradeship.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A hawk-er on Fulton street has been doing a brisk business in 100,000-mark notes at 1 cent each.

Saturday the mark was quoted at 17,000,000,000 to the dollar. The mark is therefore, worth 100 times as much as a curiosity in New York as it is in Germany as a medium of exchange.

GUNMEN OUT TO GET DRY AGENT

Assassins in Racing Auto Fire Through Window

Bullet Narrowly Misses Son of Federal Officer

Minneapolis Police Start Search for Gangster

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH) MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—Shooting from a racing automobile, gunmen tried to assassinate H. A. Paris, Federal prohibition agent, and fired one shot point blank at the silhouette of a man sitting in the window of the Paris home at 121 Fifth street SE.

The bullet crashed through the glass, narrowly missed William Paris, 20 years of age, the agent's son, who was reading a newspaper, and buried itself in the wall. Police gun squads began a hunt for the would-be assassins on the theory that they shot to revenge the killing of Ed Williams and the capture of two other bandits who ran into a trap April 24, last, while trying to rob a store at 1229 Nicollet avenue.

ASSAILANTS ESCAPE. As the bullet crashed through the window, the father, seated near his son, jumped up, switched on the lights and ran outdoors, but the assailants had fled.

"They were trying to get me, I guess," Paris said today as he recounted the narrow escape.

On the night of April 24, last, four men tried to rob the Eastern Trading Company's store near Grant street and Nicollet avenue.

Patrolman W. H. Boldt, new to the police force, formerly a machine gunner with the Eighty-eighth Division, surprised the four men in the alley.

He ran to the street, summoned Paris and his son, passing by, to help him and ran back shouting out an order, "Throw up your hands."

GUNMAN BROUGHT DOWN. One bandit drew his pistol, but Boldt shot from the hip and the gunman fell, gasping. "Don't shoot! Don't shoot!" As he fell, he pulled the trigger and two bullets cut holes in Boldt's uniform.

William Paris grappled with another one of the bandits, and the older Paris pursued a third. A fourth man escaped. William, a National Guardsman, overpowered his man after he brought him to earth with a football tackle.

The wounded bandit died in a hospital.

Iron Lowered into Well Makes Circuit with High Tension Line

(IT A T NIGHT WIRE.) PARKERSBURG (W. Va.)

Oct. 29.—Three men were killed when an iron pipe they were lowering into a well came in contact with a high tension electric wire late today. The three men, worthy M. Johnson, Earl Coe and Opal Lightner, were knocked to the ground and died a few minutes later.

He was identified as Ed Williams, a former convict.

Mr. Paris and his son were seated in the living-room of their home the son being directly in front of the window looking out on the street.

He was reading a newspaper which he held directly in front of him. His silhouette was all that was visible from the street.

The bullet narrowly missed his head.

Father and son ran out into the street, but said they saw no signs of the mysterious gunman who apparently had driven past the house at high speed.

Home-made Alarm Announces Return for Plunder

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH) CINCINNATI (O.) Oct. 29.—The

Ingenuity of Ora Jeffries, manager of a small hotel here, led to the capture of a thief this other day.

When a card game broke up late one of the players missed his watch. Jeffries later found it under a dresser in the room.

Believing that the thief would reappear to remove it from its hiding place, he devised a burglar alarm consisting of a glass tumbler, a tin pan and a spoon. The thief returned, groped under the dresser and caused a clatter by knocking the spoon from the top of the glass to the pan.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Market Was Dull
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—After an early period of activity, if not of strength, today's bond market turned dull and closing prices were not far from final quotations on Saturday.

Publication of numerous railroad earnings reports for September stimulated trading in railroad mortgages and some of the secondary issues moved downward slightly. High-grade investment issues fluctuated narrowly and the averages for that group remained unchanged on the day.

There was some selling of copper, sugar and rubber company issues, but on the whole industrial issues were firm or better.

Traders were inclined to offer foreign government bonds, probably due to the Sunday address of Premier Poincaré of France re-iterating France's unwillingness to shade Germany's reparations payments. Active United States government bonds also declined sharply, losses running from 4-32 to 1-32 of a point.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Following are the closing quotations on bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Furnished by Lucas & Ryan, 200 South Spring street.

"Some of Our Very Best Customers Failed—"

Credit losses come like a thief in the night. The Central Chemical Co., of Hagerstown, Md., recently found this out. In acknowledging our draft they say this about

Credit Insurance:

"These losses for which you have paid us were caused by failures of some of our very best customers, some of whom we had sold for years. Everyone, of course, was considered first class, as we feel we exercised more than usual care in passing on our credits."

You can't foresee credit losses, but you can absolutely safeguard against them with a policy of American Credit Insurance. Don't put off investigating this great protective service.

RUMOR BUSY IN COPPER MARKET

Wage Cut Excites Many Wises, Who "Reckon"

Head of Big Company Denies Talk of Shutdown

No Surplus Stocks; Trimming to Meet Costs

BY CHARLES F. WILLIS,
Editor "Arizona Mining Journal"

In view of the hundreds of foundationless rumors that have been floating around during the past several months as to what the copper mines are going to do, the action of removing the advance in wages granted last March has shown the plan and will probably have a quieting effect on Dame Rumor. Among the many rumors have been those that the mines have been going to shut down; that they were going to cut to a five-week week; that they were going to lay off all men on development; that they were going to stop and operate on a part-time basis; that certain smelters were going to stop and throw their ore to other smelters, etc., etc.

In other words, those interested in the mining industry have been expecting some action on the part of the copper industry for some time, due, of course, to the low price of the metal and the lack of sales to European countries. Just what that action was to be has been the inspiration for all kinds of prognostications, many of which were utterly absurd in view of the facts, but they have had a quieting influence in the sections of the country influenced by copper trade.

THEATER MAN IS BLAMED IN PLOT

Indictment Charges Federal Rum Tax Conspiracy*

Withdrawal of Liquor From Warehouse Involved

A secret indictment returned by the Federal grand jury last Friday charging George Cleveland and Guilio Nucolo with conspiring to defraud the government out of liquor taxes amounting to $5000.00, penalties not included, was re-released yesterday when Nucolo was taken into custody and held for $5,000 bail. Cleveland, a Santa Monica resident, and Nucolo, who is in New York and a telegraphic warrant for his arrest is reported to have been sent to authorities of New York. Nucolo, in preprobation day, now is in the Federal Bar, opposite the Federal Building. He was at one time president of the La Rue Medicine Company and was interested in the Escondido Winery.

Evidence in the case has been pending for months. Witnesses summoned last Friday are said to have included H. C. Fox of Venice, self-confessed partner of Cleveland; Louis Laine, former United States Deputy Marshal, now publisher of a Venice paper; Divisional Prohibition Chief Hunt, and Revenue Chief Cottrell.

U. S. Atty. Burleigh G. DeGray and H. C. Haddon, of Detroit, represented the Federal prosecution.

ANDERSON STARTED QUIZ

The indictment is based on evidence and affidavits submitted February 7, last, by W. W. Anderson.

The story of the case dates back to January 18, last, when L. G. Hult, acting chief, general post office at Washington, D. C., gave instructions for an investigation of records covering the withdrawal of twenty-nine barrels of whiskey by George Cleveland, tax collector at Cleveland, Ohio, who had paid at nonbeverage rate, and was to be sold illicitly for beverage purposes, the withdrawals dating from February 19, 1920, to July 23 of the same year, from the Cook-McFarland bonded warehouse.

ment was made by H. C. Fox in which he asserted that a conspiracy had been entered into by himself, Cleveland, and Nucchio, whereby they were to be withdrawn from the war business in the case of the La Rue Medicine Company and sold, thereby defrauding the government of revenue. The meeting was conducted in the office of the Mayor at 100 West Spring street. It is charged, Orattini now awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to bribe Prohibition Agent Dolley. The conspiracy, according to evidence, included the Mayor, Cleveland, Nucchio, Orattini, and others, some of whom have been imprisoned and others diamissed from

LIQUOR FOR NUCCIO

Nuccio, as president of the La Tru Medicine Company, received nine out of every five barrels withdrawn, according to statements obtained in a full report of the investigation.

George Cleveland, H. C. Fox and Nuccio were charged with conspiracy to defraud and vigorous prosecution was recommended by divisional Chief Anderson. Fox turned government witness, admitted that Cleveland had swindled him out of his share of profits. Prosecution against him was dropped.

The government will attempt to trace the source of the $15,000,000, estimating more than $15,000,000 was taken from Cleveland and Nucello aside from increasing the conspiracy charge involved.

Affidavits against Cleveland were filed by Sol Barker, the former police captain of the Kinney Company in Venice, Frank Kurten and C. G. Markhurst, the latter two being trustees of Venice.

As to the effect of the arrest that Cleveland approached him with a proposition to sell liquor and that being under obligations to the former, he consented. The trustees made statements that they had been contacted by Cleveland with a couple of whisky which Cleveland, to date, has failed to deliver.

Madrigal Quartet on Bill
Prove Songbirds

Professor of University
Entertains Fans

BY E. G. ORMISTON

Station Redlands, varied in character, varied in presentation. One of the outstanding features was the Madrigal Quartet, who appeared on the matinee and evening programs. This quartet is composed of Charlotte Louise Ford and Ethel Hilliard Bennett, soprano, Ruth Morland and Alice Wheeler Harbrough, alto. The four voices blended in pleasing harmony and carried a charm that was appealing. Their programs included "Sweet and Low," by Rogers; "Do you Remember," by Carle Jacobs-Bond, and "The Old Road," by Scott. Mrs. Blanchette Ford, the director of the Madrigal Quartet, accompanied them on the piano.

KNOW DIALLECT SONGS

Charlotte Louise Ford, a member of the Madrigal Quartet, entertained as soloist on three of the day's programs. In a clear voice of pure sustained notes she gave a number of negro dialect songs that were splendidly interpreted. Her program also included "Rain, Rain, Rain," by Bond, and "Rain," by Curran, which registered over the radio in a highly satisfactory manner.

Prof. W. B. Oida, of the University of Redlands, entertained on each program, excepting the children's hour. During the noon session he presented a group of bird songs, of his own composition, explaining the bird melodies and the song which he has written around them. These included whistled bird songs which were the envy of the choir of K.H.J. Radio Klondike.

Prof. Oida is possessed of an unusual baritone voice, and also played several of the old Irish and Scotch songs. He also gave "Recreation," his own composition, and "The Home Road," by John Alden Carpenter.

PLAYS CLASSICS
Elizabeth Tschudy, a talented pianist, played from the repertoire of Chopin, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Brahms and Liszt, with charming touch and interpretation.

Prof. Charles Marsh of Redlands University, also played the Knabe, MacDowell's "Prelude" and "Nocturne," by Mendelssohn, were given during the noon broadcast and were a highly pleasing feature of the hour.

Lucy Lewis, juvenile harpist, pupil of Kastner of Los Angeles, evidenced promising ability in her artistic rendition of "Fingert Span- phoria," by Ledechi, and "Aolian Harp," by Händel.

Harold H. Scott, violinist, played two beautiful numbers during the evening broadcast. Mr. Scott is teacher of the violin in Redlands.

Ruth Grinnell, pianist, pupil of Prof. Charles Marsh of the University of Redlands, played the accompaniment for the baritone solo of Prof. Oida during the day, and entertained with several piano solos in the evening. Her execution of "Palmiste," by Chopin was of pleasing interpretation.

PUPILS PLAY VIOLIN
During the bedtime program, three pupils of Harold H. Scott of Redlands delighted the lady and ladies with violin numbers. They were Marguerite Nowell, Delmo

BOOTLEGGER LIST SOUGHT BY VOLLMER

Public Asked to Supply Names and Information as to Law Violation

Do you know a bootlegger? This question has generally been whispered in the past in Los Angeles, but yesterday Chief Vollmer asked it right out loud. The chief wants to make the acquaintance of everybody who knows bootleggers; in fact he would like a complete list of all the bootleggers in town and the only way he can think of to get it is to have the public furnish it to him. "We cannot rid this city of bootleggers, gambling and vice without the co-operation of the public," he said. "Let every citizen, before he starts kicking because the police do not clean up the town, ask himself this question: 'Do I know of any place where gambling is being carried on? Have I told the police department about them? If not, why not?'"

"Then let him ask himself the same questions about bootlegging and questionable houses. So far I have received no reliable information from any public spirited citizen. They only give me generalities. Specific cases referred to me will be attended to in a hurry. So far as the police are concerned, we are tackling the problem as best we can. We are working to make an end of bootlegging and to suppress vice as much as it can be done."

CHINESE FEARS ATTACK
LETTER DICTATES LIFE OF ORIENTAL IN DANGER

The friends of Hong Shon, westernized Chinese, fearing that his life is in danger, were trying yesterday to get in communication with the man who brought to the Wing Chung Lung Company of 183 North Los Angeles street a letter from Hong Shon, written at San Clemente Island. In the letter Hong Shon asked assistance declaring he feared he would be killed. The Chinese has a white wife, and it is known he has an enemy, who may have pursued him to the island. The Wing Chung Lung Company has turned over to Attorneys Goodspeed and Pandell the letter and asked for an investigation.

Biltmore Event

City Mothers—no, that doesn't mean they are mothers of the city, but material in regard to the city or other beautiful things that have to do with a great city like Los Angeles.

For nine years these women have been busy in the city, making a comfortable gray-haired, kindly old woman in black dress, with a button down, the great women who hold children in their arms all day long, and the mothers who are the backbone of the city.

At the Biltmore Hotel, the City Mothers gave a banquet to celebrate the ninth anniversary of the organization of the City Mothers.

The banquet was given by the City Mothers, a group of women who have been busy in the city for nine years, making a comfortable gray-haired, kindly old woman in black dress, with a button down, the great women who hold children in their arms all day long, and the mothers who are the backbone of the city.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

MENU PLANNING—NO. 11

Yesterday we talked in general on the needs of the child and I gave you a foundation upon which to build your menus. Today we will review this foundation and go into our story.

The best foundation for each day consists of—first, the protective foods: one and one-half pints of milk (at least); one full cup of vegetables (especially the green leafy vegetables) part of them raw; and one cup of fruit, part fresh if possible—and second, energy foods: cereals, including whole grain bread; fats in the form of butter or cream; egg yolk, and nuts.

You will give your child other foods besides these I have listed, but if he has Part I as the minimum basis for every day, he will have from twenty-five to thirty-five calories more of protein. Other foods will add a little store of protein also.

All of these approximate from 215 to 235 calories of protein a day. This is relatively high protein for an adult needs, but a child needs more protein, in proportion to his weight, than an adult does. You will remember from our lessons on proteins that a child needs considerable extra protein for his growth. If there should be a little excess above the minimum requirements, it will be utilized as an energy food.

This shows you that if you have a minimum of three glasses of milk a day, whole wheat bread, one other relatively high protein food, you need not worry about the protein or the kind of protein in your diet.

IMPORTANT!
Readers of this column are very many and very interested. They write many inquiries, which Dr. Peters is eager to have and very glad to answer when possible. But more and more they neglect to self-address envelopes for her reply.

Now owing to the great number of inquiries received, we are sorry that it is no longer possible to make reply unless the simple rules of the column are observed. Hereafter if you expect a stamped envelope fully addressed to yourself, with your inquiry, to be returned, the postage (if sent) will be given in charity.—(The Editor.)

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Fine Gargle

An inexpensive, but effective gargle for a sore throat is made with one-third teaspoonful of salt in a glass of tepid water.

A Lint Remover

Moisten the rubber sponge and squeeze almost dry. It is an excellent article to use to clean lint, fuzz or hair from woolen clothing.

Fish in the Refrigerator

If fish must be kept in the refrigerator, wrap it and the platter holding it in waxed paper. This will prevent any odor from spoiling the other foods.

Tea and Coffee Stains

Glycerin will remove tea and coffee stains that have become set in linen. Rub it well into the stained part and then wash as usual, boiling if necessary. All stains will have vanished when this is done.

Just a Door Hook

Most mothers have the fear that baby will at one time rock over in his high chair. One mother has a screen door hook on the back of the high chair and a screw eye in the woodwork of each room.

In Conserva

Nuts should be added last when making conserves and cooked only when the fruit is soft enough for them to heat through.

Easily Skinned

Plunge beets into cold water immediately upon removing them from the stove and the skin will slip off easily.

Into the Patch Bag

When hemming new tablecloths, save the ravelings. They are the best material obtainable for darning holes or stitching in worn table linen.

Frosted Tomatoes

If a touch of frost has bitten the green tomatoes, drop them into cold water and allow them to stand for a while. They are less likely to spoil than if allowed to warm quickly.

Ivories

Ivories should be kept in a moist atmosphere. In most shops where ivory is sold, a small receptacle of water is kept in the cabinet with the valuable trivies.

BID ON CITY LOT MEETS REJECTION

Council Declares Single Offer for Downtown Land Not Sufficient

The City Council yesterday turned down a bid of $131,404 for a lot the city owns at 1018 South Broadway and rejected the bid of Gore Brothers, Inc., for this amount. On motion of Councilman Crawford, the check for the initial payment of $1304 on this offer was returned to the bidder.

President Workman said that the money from the lot could be used toward purchasing a fire boat for the harbor, but the other Councilmen said that the first boat should be purchased from the fire boat money voted more than a year ago.

The lot has a frontage of fifty feet on Broadway, and the Councilmen had set a minimum figure for bidders of $2600 a front foot. Gore Brothers were the only bidders and their bid was $26.80 a front foot more than the minimum bid. The lot was acquired by the city for unpaid assessments for the opening of Broadway south from Tenth street.

NINTH-STREET BRIDGE SIDEWALK PROPOSED

COLLINS URGES TEMPORARY WORK TO PROTECT PEDESTRIANS

Former Councilman Michael Collins appeared before the City Council yesterday and urged that a temporary sidewalk be built on the Ninth-street bridge, pending the construction of the new viaduct over the Los Angeles River at this point.

He said that the present bridge is so narrow that pedestrians are endangered as they walk across it, and that one man was recently killed there recently by a motor truck.

The Council's Public Works Committee will consider the matter this afternoon.

Honduras has few motion-picture houses and the people like only Wild West and other thrillers.

SALE MADE OF OSTRICH FARM HERE

Famous Show Place Taken Over by H. A. Wishard and R. H. Bailey

The Los Angeles Ostrich Farm, a show place famous the country over, has changed hands, the new owners, H. A. Wishard and R. H. Bailey, taking possession yesterday.

The farm is situated on Mission Road near Lincoln Park and has been operating for the last five years. More than 100 ostriches are now at the farm, and an ostrich hatchery is maintained in addition to being a sightseeing attraction for the farm.

Mr. Wishard, one of the new owners, was formerly an Assembly member from Los Angeles, but several years ago moved to Bangor, where he has engaged in the practice of law. It is understood that he will maintain his residence at Bangor.

Mr. Bailey, a partner in the farm, is a native of Los Angeles and has been engaged in business in Los Angeles for many years. He was purchased the farm from Mr. Wishard for a price of $100,000.

Information obtained from the two Mexicans led Police Officers Luke and Velt to visit a house at 117 North Main street. Three youths, who gave their names as F. Mendez, 22 years of age; Pete Aguilar, 21 and L. Figueroa, 19, were found at this address.

They were unable to give a satisfactory explanation, the officers said, and were booked on suspicion of robbery.
